CED & Greentech Renewables Support Maui Community

HONOLULU, Hawaii — In response to the wildfires that devastated the town of Lahaina and West Maui, Consolidated Electrical Distributors (CED) and Greentech Renewables have collaborated with the Hawaii Community Foundation (HCF) to donate $500,000 to the Maui Strong Fund. HCF is committed to offering resources and administering funds throughout Hawaii to improve the lives of its people. HCF is profoundly involved in working with community leaders and organizations to provide continuous disaster response and relentless recovery efforts. This donation will support financial relief efforts for those who need it most.

“A sincere mahalo to our donors who have stepped up so quickly to support our community in the times we need it most.” - Micah Kane, CEO and President of Hawaii Community Foundation

Words cannot express our gratitude for the Hawaii Community Foundation's unwavering dedication to the Maui community. Our deepest sympathies are with the families of lives lost, and our thoughts are extended to all affected. CED and Greentech Renewables remain devoted to using our services to improve energy infrastructure in communities across the country.

“Our leadership understood the scale of this disaster and wanted to make an impactful donation to the local community. By partnering with Hawaii Community Foundation and donating to the Maui Strong Fund, we know our donations will directly support the people of Maui.”

- Ben McCormick, Greentech Renewables - Hawaii Manager
